IHA Announces Plans to Allocate Nearly $1.5 Million in 2021 to Reduce Homelessness

INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana – The Indianapolis Housing Agency announced it will dedicate $1,485,936 to combat homelessness in Marion County during 2021. This funding will provide, on average, 144 homes to families and/or individuals. Contingent on the success of this initiative, more funding could be reserved for the homeless or those at extreme risk of becoming homeless.

Being able to offer more housing to this vulnerable population is due in part to the reformation that has taken place at the IHA. Since beginning his work as the IHA’s Executive Director two years ago, John E. Hall has worked tirelessly to reform the agency. That work is outlined in the Indianapolis Housing Agency’s 2019-2020 Biennial Report. In addition to combating homelessness, the agency has also been involved in numerous community development projects and increased housing for other low-income populations.

Hall also announced his 2021 Action Plan. In 2021, the agency will work to stabilize neighborhoods, improve Public Housing and offer more housing through the Housing Choice Voucher program.
